

SCARS

A film written by STARS production

Directed by Ebube & Gideon

SCENE ONE

The scene starts with a dark screen and a scream. During the period of the cast being written. A girl is walking through a dark hallway. She arrives at the door and opens it. She sees pillows littered around the floor of the room. She looks and sees her mother's face bruised lying on the Sofa with her father pouncing on her.

Kiara: Mum...

Mum: Kiara get out. Leave now!

(As she leaves she shuts the door behind her as the screaming continues. She sheds a tear and then 'SCARS' is shown on the screen.)

A building is shown on the screen with sounds of cars passing by as if it's by the roadside.

Therapist: Kiara, Kiara (her voice sounds distant)

(The camera gets a close-up view at her face. Kiara's hand is on her chin as she stares into space)

Therapist: Kiara (The sound of her voice gets closer indicating that she is snapping out of her thoughts)

Kiara: Sorry (she turns with tears rolled down her cheek)

Therapist: Tissue?

(She did not know tears rolled down her cheeks)

Kiara: Oh, (she says surprised by her tears) thank you. You are so kind. (She says and wipes her tears)

Therapist: Are you good now? Can we move on? (she asks with a book and pen in hand)

Kiara: Yes, we can (she says while wiping away her tears). I had vowed that I would marry a man that would choose me above everything else.

Therapist: (Jots it down)

Kiara: My father was a well-known philanthropist. He helped the poor. He even trained orphans in school. He loved his children as well but somehow... he never showed that same love to my mother. I was scared, so I wanted my story to be different.

...And it was.

(FLASHBACK TO WHEN SHE MET HER PERFECT MAN)

Kiara continues.

Kiara: I was always such a klutz in school...(laughs), silly me. On the first day of our Physiology course, I came into the class really late and was completely all over the place.

Before I could fully put myself together, the teacher asked me a question. The whole class went silent. All of their attention was on me. I could feel my heartbeat getting faster. I was so scared because I didn't know the answer.

Kiara: Umm... I don't know Ma'am.

Teacher Vivien: How could you say that you don't know something as basic as this. Even a child from kindergarten can answer this question.

(Kiara continues in her voiceover)

Immediately I heard the voice of someone sitting in front of the class. It was him.

Dan: They would need to first learn how to talk no? (He said with a British accent)

The entire class broke out in laughter. Then he turned and winked at me.

After the class he came to me and spoke to me. He was kind with his words. Oh, those words dripped from his mouth like oil. He said everything right. He pushed all the right buttons. He was my dream man. He was everything "I" wanted.

Oh I remember a particular night when I came down with a fever and body weakness and was unable to finish up my thesis and the deadline for submission was midnight. He stayed up through the night helping me with my thesis.

Dan: Babe try eating something, okay?

Kiara: Okay (she says weakly).

Dan: I'll soon be done.

He could have slept you know or played FIFA with his guys or even gone to the cinema to chill and rewind but no, he spent his Friday night writing my thesis for me. And in that moment it dawned on me that he was the kind of man I would like to spend the rest of my life with.

SCENE TWO

(Dan and Kiara in a restaurant on a date)

Dan... (chuckles) he just got me. For my birthday, he had reserved a table for two in one of the classiest restaurants in town. My goodness (she laughs a little) if this is what the man could do for a girl's twenty-fourth what would he do when it's the big twenty-five. If this was a dream, I definitely did not want to wake up.

Kiara: The food here is so good. (she looks up and finds him staring at her)

Kiara: What is it?

Dan: But your beauty is better.

Kiara: I think you're studying the wrong course 'cos Bruh, these lines flow on a steady (she laughs and continues eating but he keeps on staring).

Kiara: (She stops halfway as she's about to take the next bite out of her meal) Okay, now you're scaring me. What's up?

And then out of nowhere, I hear a saxophone playing my favorite song. It caught my attention and so I turned back to look in that direction and I saw them walking towards our direction. I turned to get Dan's attention.

Kiara: Dan

And I could not believe my eyes.

Dan: It could have been no other person. You were designed for me. You're not just any other woman. No, you are God's plan for me. The moment I met you I knew there was no turning back. A million words cannot properly describe my love for you.

Kiara Davids, will you marry me?

And so it was, on the fifteenth day in the month of May at exactly 3:15pm my man went on a knee. And I said, Kiara: Yes, I will! Yes! (The people around them clap while one person takes a picture.

SCENE THREE

(Back to the therapist's office)

Therapist: (She leans in looking all gooey and mushy) This is such a wonderful love story. If this is your problem, I am sorry to say but I believe I would want that kind of problem (she says and laughs).

Kiara: (she turns her face and is silent briefly) That's not all (She turns back to look at the Therapist. The therapist leans back into her chair with a more serious look on her face)

(FLASHBACK TO SOME DAYS AFTER THE PROPOSAL)

Immediately after graduation I had already received two job offers in two well-known pharmaceutical companies. I eventually settled for the one closest to where I lived. Dan had gotten a job already and had started working in a company East of where I lived. I didn't know how male-dominated the company was. From those at the top down to the newest interns, most of my colleagues were males.

One of those days after I had resumed working at the company. I got a call from Dan.

Dan: Hey. Where are you?

Kiara: No hi babe, how was your day babe? How caring of you hussy (she says sarcastically).

Dan: For the last time, where are you Kiara?

Kiara: Okay, okay, I'm having lunch.

Dan: Look behind you.

I thought this was bound to be another one of his many surprises. I turned and I saw him walking towards me. I was filled with so much joy seeing him but as he drew nearer I couldn't read his emotions. I couldn't say if he was happy to see me as I was to see him.

Dan: So this is the lunch right?

Before I could say as much as a word, he poured my glass of water on my newly made hair and left. I was shocked. I was too shocked that I could not return back to work. I had to take the day off. I racked through my brain thinking of any fights or disagreements we must have had that could have warranted this...there was none, not one.

One occurrence could be assumed to be a mistake, but similar things happened five more times after that. We have been disagreeing so much lately on so many things. It's been fights upon fights, quarrels on quarrels.

(BACK TO THE THERAPIST'S ROOM WITH THE CAMERA ON KIARA)

Kiara: And right now, I don't think I can take any more of it.

(SHE'S ON THE ROAD TAKING A STROLL DEEP IN HER THOUGHTS AT DUSK
WITH SOFT AND SAD MUSIC PLAYING IN THE BACKGROUND)

SCENE FOUR

Dan rings a doorbell. It's Bianka's; Kiara's cousin. She opens the door slightly. The scene switches to a playground. They sit far away from each other on the bench.

Kiara: How did you find me here? (She says not looking at him, looking straight ahead)

Dan: I was at yours and when I rang and you didn't answer I knew you would be here.

Kiara: Okay, now you've found me, what do you want from me?

Dan: Us. I want us. I want what we once shared. Kiara, I still love you. I have been unable to eat anything since our last disagreement.

Kiara: You call that a disagreement? Dan, you almost hit me! If the pizza guy hadn't rang that buzzer you would have hit me.

Dan: It's because of how much I love you Kiara. I can't stand seeing you with other men. I just can't.

Kiara: Dan, I explained to you severally that those guys were colleagues.

Dan: (He raises his voice) And that's what upsets me about this. The fact that you still have the nerve to say lie to my face after all of the evidences I've gotten.

Kiara: Dan..

Dan: No, you go behind my back cheating and I'm saying I will accept you, nonetheless.

Kiara: Dan please...

Dan: Kiara, I'm not done speaking. Don't interrupt me when I'm talking (He stands up pointing his finger at her) or else...

Kiara: (She also stands up) Or else what? You'll hit me?

(Dan's hand is formed into a fist as he gnashes his teeth. The camera zooms into his hand as she looks at his folded hand ready to throw in a punch)

The next day is the day of the fair. As she and her colleagues arrive at the location for the fair with their things for set-up, she gets a call.

Kiara: Guys, you can go without me. I'll join you in a bit (she quickly excuses herself to pick up a call. It was from her mum)
She went into the restroom.

Kiara: Mum, I can hear you now. What's up? I'm a bit busy right now.

Mum: Kiara you've not been picking up my calls or is it because of what I said?

Kiara rolls her eyes in frustration.

Mum: But you know that what I'm saying is for your own good and it's because I love you. There is no perfect man out there. At least he does not cheat, and you said he almost beat you, but he didn't beat you. Even me, your father beat me, but I am still here and we are married now 32 years and counting.

Kiara: Mum, if this is what this call is about I'm sorry, but I need to go.

Mum: You will be 31 next month. Are you not scared?

Kiara: Yes I am mum, but what is scarier is the thought of 'not living to see the next day as a married woman'. I saw you that day mum, I still remember your screams like all of this happened yesterday (her mum goes silent). Mum are you okay?

Mum: I'm fine (she says with a shaky voice). I'll call you later Kiara.

Kiara was stressed and the day had just begun. She washed her face with some water to cool her nerves, but it didn't feel enough and so she screamed.

Kiara: Arrghh!

Someone immediately came out of one of the toilets.

Zoe: Hey, are you alright? (she asked as she came close to her and placed her hand on her shoulder)

Kiara: Have you been there all this while?

Zoe: Yes, I have. I wanted to leave but I didn't know what would have been more awkward. I would have stayed still in the toilet, but when I heard your scream I was afraid you were trying to hurt yourself and so I came out.

Kiara: Get out.

Zoe: (With her hand still on Kiara's shoulder and Kiara bent over on the sink)

Kiara: Get out! (After Zoe leaves Kiara is to slide down to the floor crying)

Zoe hurriedly leaves the restroom while she hears Kiara crying from the other side of the door.

After a while Kiara cleans up herself and comes out after adjusting her make-up. As she comes out before completely closing the toilet door she hears someone saying something.

Zoe: Are you missing something?

Kiara recognizing the voice is about to shout at her to scram until she turns and sees Zoe with one of the pair of her earring.

Kiara: When did that come off? (she says touching her earlobe)

Zoe: I found it around the vending machine, and I recognized that I had just seen it. At this point I think it's safe to say that our paths are meant to cross, no?

Zoe walks up to her and hands the earring over to her.

Zoe: Here you go. Safe and sound. I'll be leaving now.

(As Zoe turns to go Kiara stops her)

Kiara: Hey, wait a minute.

(Zoe turns back to look at her with her backpack)

Kiara: For what it's worth I'm so sorry for how I spoke to you earlier.

Zoe: No, I should be the one apologizing. You are right. I should have left instead of listening in on your conversation.

Kiara looks at her shirt.

Kiara: Now that's not the kind of shirt one sees every day.

On the shirt is written; "Teach, heal, preach"

Kiara: Are you Christian?

Zoe: Yes, I am. Actually, that's where I'm headed to do right now. My church has an evangelism outreach program in the park close to this location. I would actually like to invite you to come. (she hands her the flyer)

Kiara: I would have really loved to attend but my company has to set up here at the job fair. It's compulsory for me to be there.

Zoe: I completely understand but you can be at our church tomorrow.

Kiara: (chuckles) You are so kind but unfortunately immediately after the fair we would be travelling back to London. It was a business trip, and the return tickets have already been paid for, but when I come back to Hungary I would definitely pay your church a visit.

Zoe: Oh okay there is a Christian singles and married conference we have every July at my church. I just thought to mention that.

Kiara: Oh okay, let me add you on Instagram and then you can send the flyer to my dm. I would really like to attend this one (she says as she presses her phone putting it into her calendar). I just broke an engagement and now I want to move forward but I need help with that.

Zoe: well it's commonly said that a broken engagement is better than a broken marriage.

Kiara steps back to look at her

Kiara: Who are you? That was my breakup line (they both laugh)

Kiara: Thank you. I really needed to hear that. Recently I had been doubting the decision I made to leave, and I had been having thoughts of going back but this just affirmed my convictions on this.

Zoe: Convictions? Are you a Christian?

Kiar: Yes I am,

(Kiara checks her wristwatch)

Kiara: Ouuu, got to go! It was really nice speaking with you, Ms. uhh...

Zoe: Zoe,

Kiara: Ms. Zoe. And my name is Kiara (They hug bade farewells and Kiara scurries off)

Zoe stands for a moment shocked.

Zoe: I only hear of these things in films. How privileged I am to hear teachings on relationships before ever even getting into one.

Zoe leaves the scene.

SCENE SIX

(BACK AT LONDON)

Kiara is cozy on her couch as she scrolls through her Instagram stories and then she sees Zoe's story with a clip of Pastor Femi's teaching from RCCG CANAANLAND DEBRECEN during the 2025 single's summit. She immediately adjusted from her slouched position in her couch and opened her laptop and looked for the conference and found it. She moved to her study table watched it and after watching it she immediately closes her laptop and smirks.

7 years later...

Zoe is making her hair and checking her Instagram feed and stumbles upon a live video by Ms. Kiara.

Zoe: This lady... it's been such a long time (She checks the bio and saw the title of the video as "This is a must watch for Singles". Please can we connect this to your TV.

Zoe's friend: Sure (she connects it to the TV)

Kiara in the video: The solution to ignorance is knowledge. If we do not know what love looks like. We would need to learn about it and be informed on love not based on how we feel or what we merely think is right. We would need to see the blueprint to know the architects desired design. If we will understand what love is then we would look at love from God's perspective.

Our own individual perspectives could be flawed. We could have terrible blind spots caused by our lusts and vehement desires.

(At this point, Zoe smiles and turns her head to speak to her friend making her hair. PS: Kiara still keeps speaking but her voice is lowered as Zoe's voice gets louder)

Zoe: Do you know that about roughly 6-7 years ago this lady had just come out of a broken relationship.

Zoe's Friend: She looks nothing like that.

Zoe: I know right. God definitely knows what to do with broken pieces.

Zoe's friend: He really does

(What Kiara continues to say when her voice gets lowered is: It is insane to say that you saw abuse in any form as a child and deny that that would not cause an imbalance in how we think or process things.)

The switches from Zoe and her friend to the TV. We see Kiara still talking but her voice is not heard, the background music increases and then it fades out into the total Cast and Crew list.

